

Leadership is all about relationships, and the following statistics from prestigious research organizations make a clear case that leadership development represents your best shot at Impacting Relationships to Impact Bottom Line.

- Only 15% of an employee's career success is the result of expertise. 85% is the result of interpersonal skills. – SHRM
- 8 out of 10 workers are ready to jump ship and search for greener pastures. - CNN Money and SHRM Survey
- 2 out of 3 bosses are unhappy in their jobs and want to leave when the job market picks up.
-CNN Money and SHRM Survey
- 80% of turnover is related to unsatisfactory relationships with the boss. - Saratoga Institute
- Gallup's Management Journal's Employee Engagement Index (via Dr. James Harter, Chief Scientist at Gallup, 2016):
 - Truly Engaged at 32% - those that work with passion and feel a connection to their company.
 - Not Engaged at 50% - those that have essentially "checked out"; putting time but not energy into their jobs.
 - Actively Disengaged at 18.8% - those that are not just unhappy at work, but also busy acting out their unhappiness while at work.
- December, 2012 Gallup research shows that an engaging workplace has more of an effect on worker wellbeing than your company's vacation or flextime policies do. Their research also shows that an engaged workforce has: 1) 44% lower turnover, 2) generates 33% higher profits, 3) operates at 50% higher productivity, 4) enjoys a 50% safer environment and 5) scores 56% higher in customer loyalty. Engagement is all about relationships.
